2003 Public Accountability Statement

Today, as in the past, we honour our pact with Canada by operating our business ethically and transparently, treating our customers responsibly and fairly, and providing our employees with an equitable and supportive workplace. As well, we help to make our communities stronger, more vital and more prosperous. This is how we earn the trust of Canadians. This is how we are...

2003 Public Accountability Statement

This Bank of Montreal Public Accountability Statement (PAS) documents our corporate citizenship activities over the course of the year in Canada. Produced with all our stakeholder groups in mind – communities, customers, employees and shareholders – our PAS contains a full reporting of information as required under Section 459.3(1) of the Bank Act, including taxes paid, number of employees and small business financing. Additionally, the report highlights our ongoing commitment to responsible and ethical corporate behaviour and to active and generous support of our communities.

Published by Bank of Montreal for the fiscal year November 1, 2002 to October 31, 2003, our PAS includes information respecting Bank of Montreal and its wholly owned affiliates and prescribed affiliates, as described on page 34 of this document. The terms “BMO Financial Group” and “BMO®” as used in this document refer to Bank of Montreal and those affiliates. The terms “BMO Bank of Montreal” and “the Bank” as used in this document refer to the Canadian retail banking division of Bank of Montreal.

Chairman’s Message

Taking Care of Our Communities: How BMO and BMO People Delivered in 2003

The best reason for reading this Public Accountability Statement through to the end is the sweeping picture that builds page-by-page of the many actions BMO Financial Group, and especially our people, took last year to make this country a better place.

It is one thing to be aware of our defining commitment to the success and well-being of Canada, Canadians and our communities, but quite another to see that commitment in all of its breadth and diversity. This annual statement is your best opportunity.

You will see, for example, how effectively and compassionately BMO and BMO colleagues respond to crisis situations as they arise – and how well we are seen to perform by the public and, most of all, by the people directly affected.

As leader of this enterprise, I was pleased and proud to read what Ralph Hui, President of the Toronto Chinese Business Association, had to say about our support during last summer’s SARS crisis, which dealt his community several extra blows. “BMO Bank of Montreal was the first bank to respond to our need,” he said after we came up with an emergency package that included deferrals on loan and mortgage payments and access to short-term lines of credit. “We have a good relationship with BMO,” Mr. Hui added. “They take care of our community.”

But as you read, please keep in mind that this particular “good relationship” did not just happen by accident. Like so many of the other relationships we at BMO cherish, this one grew out of a centuries-old tradition of accountability to all of our stakeholders all of the time, reaffirmed daily by the deeds and decisions of thinking, caring people across our enterprise.

Delivering in Times of Need

As Canada’s oldest bank, it has been our privilege to be a partner in the growth of our nation. For 186 years, we have contributed to the country’s economic development. And we have been rewarded. As Canadians have flourished and prospered, so has our business.

But life is not always smooth, and true partnership is not just about sharing good times. Throughout our history, BMO Financial Group has recognized – and lived up to – our responsibility to support our customers and communities in times of need.

We provided, for instance, £100 to “sufferers in the fire at Boucherville, Quebec” in 1843, $2,000 to aid the living and bury the dead from the S.S. Titanic in 1912, and $200,000 to the Montreal branch of the Red Cross Society for the National War Appeal, between 1939 and 1945.

A Year of Trials

BMO once again demonstrated our commitment to our customers and communities in 2003, a year marred by unanticipated and unwelcome trials throughout Canada. In Badger, Nfld., floods brought a community to a frozen standstill. In British Columbia, forest fires destroyed the homes of hundreds of families. In Alberta, the discovery of a single cow with BSE wreaked havoc on the country’s multi-billion-dollar beef industry. In Toronto, SARS killed dozens, challenged the city’s health care system and besieged the region’s economy. In Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, Hurricane Juan devastated lives and the landscape.

As documented in the pages of this report, BMO once again endeavoured to help. As well as providing financial support for disaster relief, we introduced innovative programs to meet the needs of our customers whose lives and businesses were affected by these exceptional events. Meanwhile, at BMO Bank of Montreal branches across the country, our employees collected food, raised money and offered helping hands.

Being there for our customers and communities – delivering – it’s how we do business at BMO Financial Group.
Our company has a responsibility to Canadians, who grant us licence to operate. We repay this trust when we succeed as a business, which in turn allows us to help ensure the prosperity and well-being of our society.

Our success is Canada’s success. Of course, the wealth BMO Financial Group generates as a successful business also benefits our shareholders. A full 34% of our net income before taxes is returned to our shareholders through dividends and reinvested in the company. In 2003, that represented $777 million.
Taxes Paid
Return on investment is only the most obvious way we deliver to Canada. We pay taxes too. In fiscal 2003, BMO Financial Group paid taxes to all levels of government in Canada of more than $1,455 million. This amount included:

- $1,055 million in income taxes
- $100 million in provincial capital taxes
- $153 million in GST and sales taxes
- $112 million in payroll taxes (employer portion)
- $31 million in property taxes
- $4 million in business taxes

Employment in Canada
We also deliver when we create jobs. With more than 31,000 full-time and part-time employees in Canada, BMO is one of the country’s largest employers. Our total employee compensation topped $2.48 billion in 2003.

Contributing to the Economy
Along with taxes and payroll expenses, we also contribute to the economy through our spending on capital expenditures. Last year, our expenses to Canadian suppliers amounted to $1.23 billion.

Giving Back to Our Communities
As a socially responsible corporation, we believe that we have an obligation to give back to our communities – which, after all, are the source of our success. Through our corporate donations and sponsorship programs, we contributed a total of $25 million last year to more than 2,000 charitable and not-for-profit organizations across the country.

Succeeding as a business, building and distributing wealth, creating employment, giving back to our communities – this is how at BMO Financial Group we are delivering to Canada.

BMO: A Leading Corporate Citizen
In 2003, BMO Financial Group was recognized by Corporate Knights magazine as one of the Best 50 Corporate Citizens in its annual ranking of Canada’s largest publicly traded firms. BMO ranked in the top 10 of the Best 50. We also received a Gold Medal for human resources practices and a Silver Medal in the Community category.
2003 Highlights

- Pledged $2.5 million to the Sainte-Justine Hospital Foundation in Montreal to improve the care for mothers and children.
- Donated $3.9 million to United Way and Centraide across Canada.

delivering to Our Community

"Now that my kids are both in school, I want to upgrade my skills and get back into the workforce," says Clara Halliday, a single mother on social assistance. To achieve her goal, the Montreal resident turned to Accèsmultimédia, a newly opened resource centre that provides local young people and adults with computer training. BMO Bank of Montreal donated the building, worth $375,000, that serves as the centre’s home. It is the third branch that BMO has donated to serve as a community learning centre in Montreal.
Social Responsibility Starts at the Top

Sharing, participation and fellowship are the essence of community and serve as our ideals as we strive to make life better in the neighbourhoods, towns and regions where we do business.

Helping to make our communities stronger, happier and more vital has been the way we do business at BMO Financial Group since 1817, the year Canada’s first bank was founded.

Our commitment and our goodwill remain steadfast. Today, BMO is recognized as one of Canada’s leading corporate benefactors. Last year alone, we contributed $25 million to thousands of charities and not-for-profit organizations across the country.

The range of our commitment is broad, covering areas that include education, health, arts and culture, community development and sports and athletics.

A significant portion of our community development contribution supports programs and organizations that promote learning.

Focus on Learning
At BMO we have a commitment to learning. Just as learning is fundamental to our ongoing success as a business, so too is it essential to a successful society. Learning helps us understand who we are, imagine what we might become and develop tools and skills that will take us forward.

Education
Our commitment to learning is apparent in our support of education. In 2003, we contributed $2.3 million to universities, schools, and other educational organizations. What could be more rewarding than providing individuals of all ages with the opportunity to realize their potential and fulfill their promise to themselves and their communities.

Investing in Academic Excellence
BMO continues to support exceptional young people at universities and colleges across Canada. In total, we committed $6.9 million to scholarships, bursaries and internship programs in 2003. At St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, N.S., we contributed $125,000 to establish a new...
BMO Financial Group Scholarship. Valued at a minimum of $5,000 annually, the renewable scholarship is open to Canadian high school graduates who rank in the top 5% of their class. According to Dr. Sean Riley, President of St. Francis Xavier University, “This new scholarship is a lasting investment in academic excellence.”

A Partnership for Learning
BMO Financial Group has long been an active supporter of The Learning Partnership (TLP), an organization that supports partnerships between business, education and government in order to strengthen public education in Canada. We are the major corporate sponsor of TLP’s Entrepreneurial Adventure (EA) program, which brings students from kindergarten to Grade 9 together with teachers and volunteer business and community partners through the course of the school year to develop and pursue entrepreneurial ventures that benefit their communities. In the 2002-2003 school year, more than 75 EA partnerships were established, involving 55 volunteer business partners from BMO and about 2,000 students. Collectively, these ventures generated almost $50,000 for local charities and school projects. At the 2003 Entrepreneurial Adventure Showcase in June, more than 300 students and teachers demonstrated their ventures to the public and BMO Financial Group National Student Innovation Awards were presented to five schools. Winners included Ventura Park Public School in Thornhill, Ont., where Grade 5 students started a general store and raised more than $14,000 for On The Move, a registered charity that supports adults with developmental disabilities.

It’s Possible
Possibilities Youth Scholarship Program is a BMO Bank of Montreal education initiative aimed at visible minority and Aboriginal youth and youth with disabilities. This program works in partnership with local school boards and community organizations in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Vancouver. Upon completion of the program, each student receives a $1,000 scholarship toward a post-secondary institution of his or her choice. Last year, we provided scholarships to 62 youths.

Health
At BMO Financial Group, promoting physical and emotional wellness is a high priority. We understand that healthy people and communities are fundamental to a strong society. In 2003, we contributed $4 million to hospitals and other national and local health-related organizations, charities and programs supporting health and medical research across Canada.

Supporting Medical Education
In 2003, BMO presented the University Health Network – made up of The Arthritis & Autoimmunity Research Centre Foundation, The Princess Margaret Hospital Foundation and Toronto General & Western Hospital Foundation – with an investment of $2 million to endow the Bank of Montreal Chair in Health Professions Education. The bequest will enable UHN, the largest teaching hospital fully...

Healthy Mothers, Healthy Children
In a ceremony attended by Canadian and world pop superstar Céline Dion, L. Jacques Ménard, President of BMO Financial Group in Quebec, presented the Sainte-Justine Hospital Foundation with a cheque for $2.5 million. The largest-ever philanthropic donation by a bank in Quebec, the bequest is earmarked for a state-of-the-art educational and scientific conference centre in Sainte-Justine’s Mother-Child University Health Centre, which treats patients from throughout Quebec.
BMO became a founding sponsor of Kids Help Phone® (KHP) in 1989. Since then, our partnership with Canada's only 24-hour toll-free anonymous bilingual help line for children and youth has become an organization-wide affair.

In 2003, BMO and our employees contributed more than $500,000 to KHP. We continued to be the principal sponsor of the KHP Community and KHP Student Ambassador programs. As well, we sponsored the BMO Financial Group Community Skate-a-thon, co-chaired by Annie Bellemare and Emanuel Sandhu, members of Canada's national figure skating team, to raise funds for skating clubs and KHP. At 26 skating clubs across British Columbia, hundreds of children and adult skaters took to the ice to raise funds for the charity.

BMO employees also made significant contributions. In Saskatoon, 16 BMO employees volunteered for KHP's first annual Home for the Holidays fundraiser. Meanwhile, hundreds of our employees across the country participated in the Bell Walk for Kids in support of KHP in May. And last summer, 20 BMO employees organized a BMO Golf-a-thon in support of KHP at Angus Glen Golf Club in Markham, Ont. and raised $180,000.

Emma Smith, Senior Manager, Cash Management Services at BMO, who was named Kids Help Phone Volunteer of the Year (Ontario) in recognition of her years of service, understands why so many of her colleagues become involved with this excellent charity. “Kids Help Phone is a lifeline for kids in need,” she says. “The more money I can help raise means more telephone lines, which means more kids can get the help they need.”
affiliated with the University of Toronto, to set a global standard of excellence in health education research.

Advancing the Fight Against Cancer

BMO Financial Group pledged $500,000 to the Fondation de l'Hôpital Maisonneuve-Rosemont in Montreal to help the renowned institution further develop its recognized expertise and advance the fight against cancer. The BMO Oncology Centre, named in recognition of our contribution, is scheduled to open in the fall of 2004. We also donated $180,000 to Longueuil’s Charles LeMoyne Hospital Foundation in support of its new Breast Cancer Diagnosis and Treatment Centre.

Combating Juvenile Diabetes

In November 2002, BMO Financial Group received the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF) National Sponsors Award for overall corporate and company-wide support of The Walk to Cure Diabetes. For BMO and our employees, JDRF remains a charity of choice. In 2003, BMO contributed $87,000 and our employees raised $480,000 for The Walk to Cure Diabetes.

Better Maternity Care

In July 2003, nine registered nurses from the Mount Waddington area in northern Vancouver Island became the first recipients of B.C. Women’s Hospital and Health Centre Advanced Maternity Fellowships for Rural Practitioners. BMO has donated $100,000 to the initiative, which aims to provide much-needed training in advanced maternity skills for health practitioners in rural and small urban B.C. communities.

Arts and Culture

Whether created by our most celebrated cultural institutions and artists, community arts organizations or gifted amateurs, art has the power to transform, inspire and enrich our lives. In 2003, BMO contributed a total of $1.1 million to the arts in Canada. The recipients of our support include some of the country’s most treasured organizations as well as many local arts groups. Again, many of the donations we made reflect our commitment to learning.

Celebrating Canada’s Cultural Institutions

BMO Financial Group is a long-standing supporter of many of the country’s cultural institutions. In 2003, we continued to be an institutional partner of the Canadian Centre for Architecture. Located in Montreal, the museum and international study centre is devoted to making architecture a public concern through exhibitions, publications, educational and cultural programs. We also celebrated a 50-year partnership with the Stratford Festival. As well, we served as the sponsor of The National Ballet School’s Sugar Plum Fair, which raises money for the school’s Scholarship Fund.

Focus on Learning and the Arts

Reflecting our focus on learning, we continued our support of the Mornings with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra educational outreach program for high school students. Similarly, the Canadian Opera...
Company’s BMO Financial Group Student Dress Rehearsals program brings opera to young people and to new audiences, while its BMO Financial Group Pre-Performance Opera Chats provide a musical, historical and social perspective on each opera production. In 2003, we also provided funding to the National Theatre School to support students whose financial situation would otherwise prevent them from pursuing theatrical training.

National Business Book Award
Author Douglas Hunter was the winner of the National Business Book Award (NBBA) and the recipient of a $10,000 prize for his book The Bubble and the Bear: How Nortel Burst the Canadian Dream. Co-sponsored by BMO Financial Group, the NBBA is considered one of Canada’s most prestigious and respected literary awards.

Governor General’s Literary Awards
Since 1988, BMO Financial Group has been the principal corporate sponsor of the Governor General’s Literary Awards, the most comprehensive and widely known literary awards in Canada. Announcing the 14 winners (seven English-language, seven French-language) of the 2003 awards last November, Her Excellency The Right Honourable Adrienne Clarkson noted, “The excitement of reading these books is only matched by the admiration we all have for writers whose determination and talent are making Canadian literature a true reflection of the complex resonance of our country.”

Community Development
Safe, inclusive and vital communities are a source of comfort, pride and courage for all who live in them. Strong communities are also the building blocks upon which resilient and healthy societies are founded. In 2003, we contributed $3.5 million to organizations and programs that support community development. A significant portion of our contribution was targeted to groups and initiatives that promote learning.

United Way
BMO Financial Group continues to be one of the largest corporate supporters of United Way and Centraide across Canada. In the Greater Toronto Area, BMO and our employees together contributed $2.6 million. A significant part of this amount – $1.5 million – was raised by BMO Nesbitt Burns’ and BMO Private Client Group’s 2,100 employees. In addition to a three-week
In 1996, BMO’s $3 million contribution was matched by the Province of Ontario and the University of Toronto (U of T), resulting in the $9 million BMO Financial Group National Scholars Program. This program allows eight to 10 exceptional young people to pursue undergraduate studies at U of T each year. In October 2003, BMO representatives, including Chairman and CEO Tony Comper, hosted a celebratory dinner attended by U of T officials, current National Scholars and members of the class of 1998 – the first BMO Financial Group National Scholarship graduates.

Fighting Against AIDS
In 2003, the Canadian AIDS Society honours BMO Financial Group with its first Certificate of Recognition for Corporate Leadership Award in the financial services category in recognition of our involvement in the continuing fight against AIDS in Canada. In 2003, we were once again a title sponsor of Fashion Cares, the premier fundraising event supporting the AIDS Committee of Toronto, the largest AIDS service organization in Canada. BMO also supported the Canadian Foundation for AIDS Research (CANFAR), a national charitable foundation dedicated to raising money for HIV and AIDS research. BMO also continues to support Casey House, considered to be an international model for delivery of palliative and home hospice care. Additionally, we helped sponsor Toronto’s 2003 Pride and Remembrance Run and made a $10,000 contribution to the Vancouver AIDS Memorial. We are proud of our achievement and of our employees, many from the gay and lesbian community, who tirelessly devote their time and talent to help fund research and assist those affected by HIV and AIDS.

The Power of Learning
Understanding that learning has the power to change lives for the better, BMO donated $50,000 to the Children’s Aid Foundation last year to help further the education of disadvantaged young people. The money was used to provide bursary support to post-secondary students and tutoring support to children in elementary school, as well as BMO Financial Group scholarships for crown wards or former wards who are doing exceptionally well in their chosen field of study.

That All May Read
Beginning in 2003, BMO is committing $330,000 over five years to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) That All May Read campaign. The purpose of the program is to expand CNIB’s library and convert the entire collection to digital media, the largest initiative of its kind in the world. Currently, the organization’s library relies on analogue technology that is difficult to maintain, while library use is growing at approximately 6% per year.

Ontario Food Bank Drive
According to the Ontario Association of Food Banks, more than 300,000 people rely on food banks every month, 40% of whom are children. In the fall of 2003, BMO Bank of Montreal employees helped to fight hunger by raising cash and food for a total donation with a value of more than $156,000.

Sports and Athletics
Physical and emotional health, friendships and confidence are just a few of the benefits associated with sports. Whether it involves a family skate at the local arena or elite athletes training to represent their country on the international stage, sports and athletics bring us joy and contribute to our sense of well-being. In 2003, we contributed $4.5 million in donations and sponsorships to sports and athletic organizations and programs.

Canada Skates
Figure skating has long been a favourite sport of Canadians, and BMO is proud to keep the tradition gliding on. We are a major sponsor of the Canadian National Figure Skating Team and of Skate Canada, the governing body of Canadian figure skating that oversees 1,426 clubs and more than 180,000 members. In addition to supporting competitive events, BMO Financial Group is also a strong supporter of grassroots programs that develop young skaters. We are particularly proud to support CanSkate®, Skate Canada’s national learn-to-skate program. To honour and encourage the development of Canada’s future skaters, we presented 4,000 young people from across the country with BMO Financial Group CanSkate Champions Medals.

Spruce Meadows
BMO is a proud sponsor of Spruce Meadows®, a world-renowned equestrian facility hosting the best in show jumping from around the world. Located on Calgary’s southern city limits in the foothills of the Rockies, the facility attracts more than 334,000 fans each year. They come to learn about show jumping and cheer on their favourite horses and riders competing in events including the BMO Financial Group Nations’ Cup, a part of the famous Spruce Meadows Masters Tournament.

Profile
BMO Steps to the Fore

BMO Financial Group is proud to bring the best of women’s professional golf to Canada with our title sponsorship of the BMO Financial Group Canadian Women’s Open. BMO is also the title sponsor of the BMO Financial Group Canadian Women’s Tour and a primary sponsor of the Bell Canadian Open.

As well, we are honoured to help the next generation of young golfers through the BMO Financial Group Future Links program. We contributed $425,000 to Future Links last year. Conducted by the Royal Canadian Golf Association in partnership with the Canadian Professional Golfers’ Association and Canada’s provincial golf associations, the program consists of multi-level instruction, clinics, camps, support materials and special programs to raise awareness of junior golf and make the game more accessible to young golfers across Canada. More than 245,000 boys and girls have participated in the program since its inception in 1996.

The BMO Financial Group Future Links Championship program, meanwhile, provides a showcase for the best young golfers in Canada. Among them is Vancouver’s Eom-Ji Park, who made Future Links® history by claiming her fourth Future Links title at the 2003 BMO Financial Group Future Links Pacific Championship last spring. The victory secured the 18-year-old a place at the BMO Financial Group Canadian Women’s Tour event at Fairwinds Golf Club in Nanoose Bay, B.C. Says Park, who hopes to attend university on a golf scholarship, “These types of events really help me build my confidence and help me get the skills I need for a career in professional golf.”
2003 Highlights

- Launched new On-Reserve Home Renovation Loan Program, which provides personal loans of $5,000 to $25,000 to First Nations homeowners.
- Provided free banking services to 415,000 customers who are either under the age of 21 or post-secondary students up to the age of 26, and to 814,000 customers over the age of 60.

In Times of Need: Toronto

“BMO Bank of Montreal was the first bank to respond to our need,” says Ralph Hui, President of the Toronto Chinese Business Association. Hui is recalling BMO’s quick reaction to the SARS crisis, which created significant economic hardship for many, including many among Toronto’s Asian community. Specifically, we offered customers emergency relief in the form of loan and mortgage payment deferrals, as well as short-term lines of credit. “We have a good relationship with BMO,” says Hui. “They take care of our community.”
At BMO, our goal is to meet the needs of individual customers. We are committed to helping all our customers – big or small – realize their financial objectives today and achieve their future goals.

BMO customers are a diverse lot. They range from a child opening her first savings account to a young couple arranging a mortgage on a new home to individuals wishing to establish a retirement plan. But whether the need is simple or complex, BMO is there to help every individual customer, regardless of economic circumstance, in achieving his or her financial goals.

No Fees for the Young and Young at Heart

BMO Bank of Montreal reaches out to young clients as they embark upon one of the most important relationships they will nurture in their lifetimes – their relationship with their bank. BMO currently provides free banking services to 415,000 customers who are either under the age of 21 or post-secondary students up to the age of 26.

Additionally, in recognition of the needs of older clients, BMO provides free banking services for those over the age of 60. Currently, we provide these services to 814,000 such customers.

Meeting Customer Needs

Whether it’s advances in online banking or customizing our services to address special needs, BMO continually makes progressive changes in the services we offer to better serve our clients.

In 2003, we revamped our online banking web site to make the increasingly popular online banking option easier and faster for all personal and business banking customers. BMO’s web site is now fully integrated so that customers can access a complete summary of all their BMO financial holdings, including personal loans, mortgages, personal accounts and BMO Nesbitt Burns and BMO InvestorLine accounts. New features include such time-savers as multiple bill payment capability from a single screen.

“Traditionally, it’s been all but impossible to secure financing to upgrade our homes, so this is an excellent opportunity,” says Beverly Restoule, Housing Coordinator at Dokis First Nation in Northern Ontario. Restoule is referring to BMO Bank of Montreal’s new On-Reserve Home Renovation Loan Program, which provides personal loans for minor renovations of $5,000 to $25,000 to First Nations homeowners. In 2003, three Aboriginal communities signed agreements to implement this program.
In Times of Need
In keeping with our strategy of providing customized service to individual customers, BMO offered assistance to our personal and business customers affected by the various emergencies and disasters that struck Canada in 2003. For instance, following the Ontario power outage and Hurricane Juan and the subsequent power outage in Halifax, we reimbursed customers who incurred BMO Bank of Montreal overdraft charges or interest charges due to late deposits or payments. We also provided prime rate loans to customers in good standing who were awaiting verified insurance reimbursements.

Our Asian Customers
The 2001 census documents a growing influx of new Canadians. Approximately 1.8 million immigrants were recorded as having arrived in Canada between 1991 and 2001. Of those, 58% were born in Asia, with the People’s Republic of China reported as the leading country of birth among individuals who immigrated during that time. Chinese has been recognized by Statistics Canada as Canada’s third most common mother tongue.

In Their Own Language
BMO has consistently advanced our customer services in order to assist clients of Asian background. One of the first Canadian banks to provide a Chinese-language option on its automated banking machines and to offer a Chinese-language web site, BMO has added a simplified Chinese character option to our web site to assist customers who have come to Canada from China. Responding to requests from many BMO customers, the new service helps those more familiar with the simplified version of the written language.

Korean-Language Glossary
In addition, a Korean-language glossary has been introduced to our online banking service, offering a comprehensive list of banking terms and their Korean equivalents. BMO was the first Canadian bank to offer Korean-language services online. The Korean glossary joins the Chinese glossary, which was launched in 2002.

To further address the banking requirements of our large Asian client base, BMO has also made changes to our branch network in those major urban centres where Asian customer groups have reached critical mass. For example, BMO has increased Mandarin-speaking frontline staff in specially designated branches, as well as Korean-speaking frontline staff in other branches.

Ensuring Access
With the aim of delivering the best possible service to all customers, BMO Bank of Montreal is focused on providing barrier-free branch access across the country. Currently, slightly more than 86% of our branches provide level or ramped entries to accommodate customers with disabilities. Many of our branches also offer wheelchair-height seating arrangements at our service counters as well as lower automated banking machines.
Profile

The Service Our Customers Deserve

Vancouver resident Mary Ann Clayton (above left) remembers the day she went on a grocery run to her local Safeway store in Kitsilano, B.C. and ended up securing a mortgage. “I just happened to be in Safeway,” recalls Clayton, remembering how quickly her inquiry at the instore BMO Bank of Montreal branch turned into a financial reality. After meeting with Instore Financial Services Manager Albert Pang (above right), Clayton says she was “stunned” with the level of personalized service. “It was just wonderful,” she says.

Like thousands of other BMO customers, Clayton has become a fan of the service and flexibility offered by BMO’s instore locations. With shoppers often making two or even three weekly trips to their local grocer, most instore branches offer the convenience of seven-day-a-week one-stop shopping for products ranging from guaranteed investment certificates to personal loans to mutual funds.

Recognizing growing customer demand, BMO Bank of Montreal has advanced the instore banking concept across a network of grocery stores, from Sobeys® in Atlantic Canada to IGA® in Quebec to AbP® and Dominion® in Ontario. West of the Manitoba border, BMO’s alliance with the Safeway® chain, including Clayton’s Kitsilano outlet, has taken the number of BMO’s instore locations up to more than 100 in total.

Consistently a leader in banking innovations – in 1950 BMO opened the first drive-through bank branch in the country, in Vancouver, as it happens – BMO remains committed to providing personalized service and customized solutions when and where our customers want them.
business guides customized to help newly arrived immigrants access the array of financial services offered to all BMO customers. We also continue to deliver seminars on subjects ranging from business start-ups to portfolio management targeted to new immigrants in urban centres, where the majority of Canada’s Asian immigrants reside.

Our Aboriginal Customers
Our Aboriginal Banking unit, a key BMO initiative that works with Aboriginal communities, businesses and individuals across Canada, continues to grow.

Recognizing the significant impact that the provision of banking services can have on local economies, BMO Bank of Montreal has opened 12 full-service branches to serve Aboriginal communities. Of these, 10 are located on First Nations territories. Most of these branches are designed to respect and reflect the culture of the First Nations and are largely staffed by members of their community.

Serving Remote Communities
In September 2003, BMO opened its fifth community banking outlet serving remote Aboriginal communities. Located in Beauval, Sask., the new banking outlet provides community members with the opportunity to open bank accounts, make deposits and withdrawals and pay MasterCard® bills.

Promoting Indigenous Entrepreneurship
In 2003, BMO continued to build upon its alliance with Aboriginal communities through a number of important programs. For instance, we hosted the World Summit of Indigenous Entrepreneurs in Toronto last summer, bringing together approximately 300 Aboriginal, native and First Nations entrepreneurs from more than 40 countries. The forum provided an opportunity for entrepreneurs to network among themselves and with governments, multilateral agencies and private-sector organizations.

On-Reserve Housing Loan Program
The lack of adequate, affordable on-reserve housing is a major concern for all Aboriginal communities. With the approval of a number of First Nations, BMO Bank of Montreal has designed an innovative financing alternative for the delivery of on-reserve housing loans that do not involve government guarantees. The On-Reserve Housing Loan Program provides access to loans to qualified First Nations members for the construction or purchase of an owner-occupied single-family dwelling or for major renovations to an existing home. In 2003, BMO expanded the implementation of the program to two more communities – Cowichan Tribes near Duncan, B.C., and Chippewas of Kettle and Stony Point First Nation, near Forest, Ont. To date, 16 communities have participated in this program.

2003 Highlights

delivering to Our Small Business Clients

At BMO Bank of Montreal, we understand that small business is the backbone of the Canadian economy and an engine of job creation, innovation and wealth. Small business is the foundation of our future.

We have targeted small business as a priority for more than a decade. BMO Bank of Montreal is second in small business lending market share in Canada and we are aiming to be first.

New Products and Services

To realize that goal, we constantly endeavour to develop the products and services our 438,000 small business clients need to do well today – and to do even better tomorrow.

Here are some of the initiatives we introduced in fiscal 2003.

“The day after I booked three trucks to take my cattle to market, the news came down that a single cow in Alberta had BSE. It was a crisis. I could not sell the cows, which meant I would not have the money to put in our hay crop or feed the livestock I was forced to keep. The good thing is my bank understood. In spite of the fact that I had lost a major part of my collateral, they loaned me $100,000 – enough to tide me over until we finally sold the herd five months later.”

Armand Berube, Southern Alberta cattle farmer and client of BMO Bank of Montreal in Camrose, Alta.
Small Business Rate Break Program
In January 2003, we launched a Small Business Rate Break Program, offering qualified small business customers access to financing of up to $250,000 at the Bank’s prime rate until March 31, 2003. In addition, customers who took out a new loan under the program were able to defer payments on the principal of the loan for up to 90 days.

DirectLine for Business
In December 2002, we introduced DirectLine® for Business, a new web-based cash management gateway, offering business customers a simple, streamlined interface to manage account information and facilitate payments and collection of revenue.

Business Premium Rate Savings Account
Our new Business Premium Rate Savings Account was also launched in 2003. It provides business owners with an opportunity to earn investment-type interest rates on balances of up to $500,000 without giving up the flexibility of a traditional business savings account.

With Diversity in Mind
BMO recognizes that Canada’s small business sector is made up of diverse business groups, each with their own specific needs. With that in mind, we offer targeted programs that provide expertise, products and services to a range of business groups.

Financial Services Program for Poultry Producers
In 2003, we began the rollout of a comprehensive financial services program for poultry producers that recognizes the value of producers’ key assets, from land and buildings to equipment and quotas. The program takes into consideration virtually all cash and credit requirements and the everyday challenges of a supply-managed industry, and offers services ranging from everyday banking for business plans and operating lines of credit to farm improvement loans and farm mortgages.

In Good Times – and Bad
At BMO Financial Group, we are committed to building long-term relationships with our clients. That means being there for our customers in good times – and bad.

We demonstrated this commitment in 2003. Over the course of the year and across the country, BMO Bank of Montreal responded to numerous challenges that affected our small business customers, with understanding, tolerance, flexibility and innovative solutions.

For instance, we introduced a BSE Relief...
Medicard Finance Inc. was formed in 1996 in Vancouver to provide financing to individuals seeking elective medical procedures. From a great idea, the company has developed into a multi-million-dollar business serving thousands of physicians and tens of thousands of patients across the country.

Ann Kaplan (above), founder, President and CEO of Medicard, credits BMO Bank of Montreal with helping her company achieve its remarkable success. “In the beginning, after six months of due diligence, the Bank offered us a substantial line of credit,” she says. “Now, they continue to work closely with us, helping us with everything from direct electronic funds transfers to hedging.”

Helping women entrepreneurs is a way of doing business at BMO Bank of Montreal. As BMO Bank of Montreal stated in a submission to the Prime Minister’s Task Force on Women Entrepreneurs last summer, women entrepreneurs have steadily increased their share of business ownership over the past decade and need increased access to financial services from Canadian lenders.

Of course BMO does not characterize business banking customers by gender. We take the approach that, in today’s complex business environment, all our customers need customized financial solutions to manage their business banking needs. Therefore, we work hard to support women entrepreneurs by providing individualized service and solutions.

We are proud of our reputation as a woman-friendly organization. BMO was the first Canadian bank to be recognized with an award from New York-based Catalyst, which monitors women’s progress through the corporate ranks.

Meanwhile, we continue to be the prime corporate sponsor of the Rotman Canadian Woman Entrepreneur of the Year Awards (CWEYA). Says Kaplan, winner of the CWEYA in the start-up category in 2000, “BMO was very supportive when we were just starting out as a company, and they continue to be there for us today.”
Program. Available to all agriculture and agriculture-related clients affected by BSE, the program was modelled on the Prairies Disaster Relief Program we introduced in 2002 for areas affected by drought or floods.

Emergency Response Programs

On a case-by-case basis, we also offered emergency response programs involving options such as establishing new lines of credit to meet financial needs, extending amortization periods or restructuring credit terms and conditions for customers affected by the SARS crisis and the major power outage in Ontario, the devastation of the forest fires in British Columbia, and Hurricane Juan in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia.

No bank anywhere cares more than we do about small business customers, or pursues them with a greater sense of purpose. At BMO Bank of Montreal, a bank for small business is a major part of what we are, and what we will always be.

In 2003, BMO Financial Group was named one of Canada’s Top 100 Employers by Maclean’s magazine – the only bank to make the list for two years in a row. The Canadian Human Rights Commission announced that BMO was in compliance with all 12 statutory requirements in phase one of its employment equity audit, making us the first bank to achieve this distinction.

Creating a work environment free of barriers, where every individual is treated with respect, is a priority at BMO Financial Group. We believe that an equitable and supportive workplace is best for our people and our business.

At BMO, we work hard to be an employer of choice. To that end, we promote diversity and provide opportunities for our people to continuously learn and grow. We recognize, too, that a healthy workplace is one that encourages a balance between work and personal life.

We are proud to have been named one of Canada’s Top 100 Employers by Maclean’s magazine and Mediacorp – the only bank to make the list for a second consecutive year. The evaluation criteria cover a number of key areas, including employee communications and benefits policies.

To expand his career options, Juan Olarte, who is visually impaired, applied to become an Ability Edge intern after studying web design at George Brown College in Toronto. The Ability Edge program is designed to give graduates with disabilities the work experience they need to move into the business world. Having secured an internship with BMO in June 2002, the 23-year-old joined us last spring as a full-time Internet Support Assistant, a job he performs with the aid of a scanner and a large monitor. Says Olarte, “I feel like I have a future now.”
Embracing Diversity

At BMO, we embrace diversity, mindful that our success as a financial services leader is a reflection of the unique skills, talents and experience of each of our employees.

Our diversity initiatives are co-ordinated by BMO’s Office of Diversity and Workplace Equity and championed by the Chairman’s Council on the Equitable Workplace. Founded in 1991, the Council meets quarterly to review progress and to advise on what needs to be done to ensure that we reach our workplace equity goals for people with disabilities, women, Aboriginal peoples and visible minorities.

The advances we have achieved to date are considerable. For instance, since the launch of the BMO Task Force on the Advancement of Women in 1991, the number of women executives has risen dramatically. Today, 32.8% of our Canadian executives are women – up from only 9% just 13 years ago. Since 1991, the number of Aboriginal employees has grown from 0.4% of our workforce to 1.3%, while the number of employees with disabilities has grown to 3.0% from 2.1%.

Our ongoing efforts to create a diverse workforce were recognized by the Canadian Human Rights Commission. Last February, the Commission announced that BMO had achieved a perfect score on its recent employment equity audit – the first bank to achieve this distinction.

A Fine Balance

As a socially responsible employer, we believe we have a responsibility to help our people balance busy careers with the demands of family and personal life. To that end, BMO offers an Employee Assistance Program that is available to all our employees and their immediate families.

The program provides individual counselling and group workshops on subjects ranging from Family and Personal Relationships to Change and Transition at Work. BMO’s Employee Assistance Program earned the distinction of being the first in North America to be certified by the Council on Accreditation.

• For the second year in a row, U.S.-based Training magazine ranked BMO Financial Group as the top Canadian corporation on its North American Top 100 list.

A Commitment to Learning
As symbolized by our Institute for Learning, BMO’s state-of-the-art training facility in Toronto, learning is an integral part of our culture. Over the past decade, we have spent more than half a billion dollars on employee development.

This commitment to learning, along with our ability to link employee development to our strategic goals, was recognized by U.S.-based Training magazine which, for the second year in a row, ranked BMO Financial Group ahead of all other Canadian corporations on its North American Top 100 list.

Personal Development
Our focus on learning also means providing our people with the tools they need to manage their personal career goals. In 2003, the International Association of Business Communicators presented BMO’s Career Discovery intranet site with an Ovation Award for the outstanding effort and talent it displays in the field of employee communications. Career Discovery is a resource that provides tools, tips and inspiration on career planning and development.

Giving Back: An Ongoing Tradition
Being active participants in the communities where they live and work is an ongoing tradition for many BMO employees. Each year, thousands of our people devote substantial amounts of their time, energy and income to help those in need and to make life better in their communities.

Many contribute through BMO Fountain of Hope, a national charitable foundation that is owned and managed by BMO Financial Group employees. At BMO, we encourage and support employee giving. BMO covers all of the administration costs of BMO Fountain of Hope®, ensuring that charities receive 100% of all funds collected.

In 2003, our employees raised $5.8 million for not-for-profit organizations, including national charities as well as many local community organizations.

BMO Fountain of Hope National Fundraising Day
Last October, BMO Fountain of Hope launched its first national fundraising day to coincide with Canada’s Thanksgiving. In Edmonton, BMO Bank of Montreal Londonderry Mall branch employees purchased and raffled off two grocery carts overflowing with goodies. In Ontario, employees gathered 30,000 pounds of food as well as cash for local food banks. Meanwhile, Montreal-area employees raised funds by hosting Star Espoir, a talent show in which they sang, danced and performed magic tricks. In total, the day’s fundraising total was $150,000.

Supporting Employee Giving
We also augment our employees’ and pensioners’ volunteer efforts through our national Volunteer Grants Program. Last year, we contributed more than $455,000 to charities and not-for-profit organizations supported by our people.

BMO also contributed $106,700 through our Matching Gift Program for Higher Education, which matches donations made by employees to universities and community colleges across Canada and around the world.

For more than a decade, Doug Ferguson (bottom photo, first row, far right), Problem Resolution Manager for Service Delivery at BMO in Toronto, and a number of BMO colleagues have organized the Weigh-In Bassin’ Classic on Lake Weslemkoon near Bancroft, Ont. Last year, the annual charitable fishing tournament raised more than $5,000 toward a cure for Shwachman-Diamond Syndrome, a rare form of childhood cancer, and The Hospital for Sick Children Research Foundation. Of this amount, $3,000 was contributed by BMO’s Volunteer Grants Program. Says Ferguson, “Our goal is to make a difference in a child’s life.”
When a flood struck the town of Badger, Nfld. last February, Bev Law-Meilleur’s first thought was, “I have to help.” Over the next several months, Law-Meilleur, Branch Manager at BMO Bank of Montreal in Truro, N.S., did exactly that. “What started out as a little idea became a community cause,” she says. “Like Badger, Truro is on a flood plain and many of our residents know first-hand just how devastating nature can be. It seemed everybody wanted to help. The school kids raised money by drawing pictures. Local merchants put collection jars on their counters. We also had Tooney Tosses at minor hockey games, fundraising barbecues and a fabulous hootenanny.”

The sum of all this activity was a $24,000 cheque that Law-Meilleur presented last summer to the residents of Badger for the rebuilding of the community fire hall. BMO Financial Group and BMO Fountain of Hope, our employees’ charitable foundation, contributed an additional $35,000 to the Canadian Red Cross to assist its relief efforts in Badger.

In recognition of her exemplary spirit of giving, Law-Meilleur, along with five other BMO employees from across the country, received the Chairman’s Award of Excellence at a ceremony in Toronto last December. That spirit was in particular evidence in 2003, a year during which many communities across Canada faced crises. Just as Law-Meilleur responded to the devastation in Badger, hundreds of other BMO employees raised money, collected food and offered a helping hand to communities coping with emergency situations.

Law-Meilleur knows exactly why she and so many of her colleagues make community involvement a high priority. “Being there for your community just feels right,” she says.

Corporate Governance

Earning trust begins with sound corporate governance practices. BMO Financial Group has always taken the lead in corporate governance, and we continue to do so.

At BMO, we recognize that governance practices must constantly evolve as our business changes and new stakeholder expectations arise. On an ongoing basis, we review, evaluate and modify our governance practices so that they continue to meet our high standards of corporate governance. We are committed to providing a dedicated forum for discussion: thus a committee of the Board of Directors is charged with governance responsibilities to ensure frequent dialogue on governance issues with the full Board.

Charter of Expectations for Directors and Board Committee Charters

The Charter of Expectations for directors, combined with the Board Committee Charters and the Approval/Oversight Guidelines, represents the backbone of governance at BMO. Through these vehicles, both directors and management have a clear road map of each other’s duties, responsibilities, expectations and commitments to good governance.

First Principles: Our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics

Good governance must also be a top priority for every BMO employee. To this end, all of our people are required to read and act in accordance with First Principles, a framework for the conduct and ethical decision-making that are integral to their work.

First Principles states that all BMO employees must:

- Do what is fair, honest and ethical
- Respect the rights of others
- Work to the letter and spirit of the law
- Protect privacy and confidentiality
- Deal with conflicts of interest
- Conduct themselves appropriately

First Principles guides employees to ask themselves: Is it fair? Is it right? Is it legal? By keeping these questions front of mind in our decision-making, we ensure that honesty, integrity and well-defined ethical standards are the foundation for everything we do.

Community Recognition

Over the last decade, we have earned a reputation for setting the standard for corporate governance practices. BMO has been the recipient of numerous national and international awards, including:

- The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants/National Post Award of Excellence for Leadership in Corporate Governance (three times)
- 1999 Institutional Shareholder Services International Governance Award
- 2001 National Award in Governance sponsored by the Conference Board of Canada and SpencerStuart
Privacy

As a responsible company, BMO Financial Group has long been committed to keeping all information about our customers confidential. In any business, keeping personal information private is important; in financial services, it is critical.

The importance of the protection of personal information is reflected in our policies and practices. BMO’s Privacy Policy clearly states that our organization and our people must:

- Respect an individual’s personal information
- Protect an individual’s personal information
- Resolve any disputes surrounding an individual’s personal information

BMO has a Chief Privacy Officer who oversees privacy concerns, including policy, dispute resolution, education and communications activities, and reports directly to our Board of Directors and senior management. It is the responsibility of our Chief Privacy Officer to make sure that our business strategy incorporates our commitment to respect and protect the privacy of our customers’ personal information.

Social and Ethical Policies

At BMO, we endeavour to conduct our business and operations in accordance with society’s highest ethical standards. In practice, that means we:

- Comply fully with all domestic laws and regulations in each jurisdiction in which we operate.
- Follow truthful and ethical practices in advertising and adhere to the Canadian Code of Advertising.
- Champion principles of inclusion through our diverse workforce and supportive and equitable workplace.
- Adhere to the principles of confidentiality and privacy in customer relations.
- Consider the reputation, integrity and character of individuals and corporations and their managers when deciding whether or not to conduct business with them.
- Consider ethical, political, social and economic factors in addition to the usual lending considerations in the development of foreign business.

Whether at home or abroad, we do not lend for purposes that, in our view, support the suppression of basic or individual freedom, encourage racial discrimination, reinforce national hatreds or promote the use of violence and repression.

- Do not engage in loans to foreign customers to finance military equipment purchases that are inconsistent with Canada’s national defence policy or international treaty obligations. In addition, we insist that transactions that originate in non-Canadian jurisdictions comply with the national defence policies and international treaty obligations of the relevant country.
- Avoid any preferential treatment when entering into any banking transaction with a political party, constituency association, candidate, leadership contestant or any other public official (including such public official’s family and/or related business enterprises).
- Exercise the fundamental rule of good banking practice, “Know your customer,” in all business dealings with customers and in the evaluation of prospective customers.
- Will not knowingly accept deposits from, make loans to, or conduct any type of business with customers whose money we believe is derived from illegal activities. Nor will we complete any transaction of any type or operate any account for customers who fail to provide evidence of their identity, source of funds or any other information we require to establish the bona fides of a customer.
- Maintain strict conflict of interest rules for employees, officers and directors.
- Believe in openness and dialogue with all relevant constituencies, including governments, customers, employees, shareholders and the public at large, with respect to our environmental practices.
- Take reasonable precautions to ensure that, as best we can, we provide credit only to environmentally responsible borrowers.
BMO is committed to the principles of sustainable development and, in particular, to the belief that the quality of our lives improves when economic growth is integrated with respect for the environment.

BMO Financial Group has had an Environmental Policy in place since 1992. As stipulated by that policy, our commitment to the environment is multifaceted. We take the environment into consideration as part of our lending practices. We also consider the impact of our business operations on our resources and our climate. To that end, we are committed to purchasing goods and services from and working with environmentally responsible suppliers. We also encourage a green workplace through programs that promote recycling, energy efficiency, waste minimization and environmental regulations.

ENVIRONMENTAL PRACTICES

Environmental Risk Management
As lenders we use sound risk management practices to identify, evaluate and monitor environmental impacts in the business decisions we make. In providing credit, BMO takes reasonable precautions to ensure that, as best we can, we deal with environmentally responsible borrowers.

Buying Green
As part of our enterprise-wide procurement strategy, BMO endeavours to buy goods and services from suppliers that have sound environmental policies and practices.

Office Furniture
BMO has contractual relationships with Global Group of Companies and Teknion Furniture Systems, two leading Canadian office furniture manufacturers that place a very high priority on environmental responsibility. As ISO 14000 companies, both use a variety of environmentally friendly manufacturing processes that emphasize recycling and waste reduction while minimizing the use of toxic substances and volatile compounds emissions. As part of our agreement with both suppliers, we can return surplus and used furniture for refinishing and recycling in future projects, thereby reducing landfill burdens.

Carpeting
BMO also has a contractual relationship with Beaulieu Canada, which supplies all our carpeting. Beaulieu’s policies include working with government agencies to develop environmental standards and recycling old carpet and underpadding in the manufacturing of new underpadding.

Office Supplies
We participate in a partnership with many vendors on a local level to return our used toner cartridges. Some of these vendors, in turn, make donations to BMO Fountain of Hope, our employee charitable foundation, for every cartridge we return. Across our branch network, we also participate in a separate program under which all cartridges can be returned to the supplier.

A Green Workplace
We implement practices across the enterprise to recycle materials, reduce waste and conserve energy.

Technology Disposal Program
As part of our Technology Disposal Program, we donate functional machinery, including computers, fax machines and cell phones, to charitable organizations. Non-usable equipment is scrapped using environmentally friendly methods.
Technology and Consumables Recycling Program

Our Technology and Consumables Recycling Program involves the collection and recycling of obsolete and reusable “soft” media. We encourage all employees to establish local collection sites for “soft” media, including diskettes, tapes, cassettes and CDs.

BMO Corporate Locations: Reduce and Conserve

At our corporate offices in Toronto and Montreal and at our branch locations across the country, BMO has policies and programs in place to reduce solid waste and conserve energy.

At our corporate offices in Toronto and Montreal, we participate in recycling programs for paper, aluminum cans and bottles.

Following an energy audit (conducted with our property manager O&Y) at First Canadian Place in Toronto – our primary site – the building has been retrofitted with low-mercury extended-life T-8 fluorescent tubes and new electric ballasts that will result in an energy saving of $100,000 per year. Infrared faucets, which reduce water consumption, are also being installed as washrooms are renovated. Similar energy-saving initiatives have been carried out at our offices in Montreal and Calgary.

Building Automation Systems

All major BMO buildings use direct digital control building automation systems (BAS). These systems accurately monitor and control ventilation, temperature, humidity and energy consumption in a manner that was not possible in commercial buildings before the 1990s. The BAS ensures comfort for occupants while guaranteeing the most efficient energy consumption possible. Heat recovery and free cooling are carried out continuously by these automated systems.

Across Our Enterprise: Focus on the Environment

At our corporate locations and across our branch network, we strive to reduce the use of printed paper forms. Frequently used forms are available electronically, reducing the need for stockpiles of these forms. We also prefer to purchase multifunctional devices that print, copy and fax, and thus reduce the number of separate pieces of equipment. As well, as a general rule, we print on both sides of paper where possible to reduce our paper consumption and avoid colour printing to reduce our ink consumption.

In the days and years ahead, we intend to move forward on the path of sustainable development, mindful that serving the environment is an ongoing journey. With that as our goal, BMO will continue to demonstrate our willingness to work with government, industry and all relevant constituencies on environmental issues.

Keeping Vancouver Beautiful

Many BMO employees devote time and energy to environmental causes. Last summer, BMO employees joined the City of Vancouver’s official Clean-up Day. In order to ensure that the city continues to live up to its “beautiful” billing, volunteers picked up garbage and removed graffiti from buildings.
